Parents Return From Saturday Night Shopping To Find Bodies Of Children Burned To Ashes

Four Die On Up-State Railroad Crossing

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 28.—(DSN)—Seven tragic deaths of Negroes were reported in the state for the weekend following Thanksgiving Day.

Near Bolton, in Southwest Hinds County, only a few miles from the capital three children were burned to death in a fire that destroyed their farm home Saturday night.

J. W. Mason, step-father, and Mrs. Inez Mason, the mother of the children, returned to their farm home four miles south of Bolton to find the bodies of the children burned to ashes.

The children are Ethel May Ward, 11, Robert Ward, 10, and David Ward, age 8.

Stunned by the tragedy the mother was incoherent while the father could only keep repeating, "the fire burned the children to death."

At Duck Hill, in Montgomery County in the north central section of the state, four men were instantly killed when a lumber truck was struck at a grade crossing by an Illinois Central train.

The victims of the tragedy were identified as David Brown, Nathaniel Burl, Charlie Wright, and Howard Frazier the driver of the ill-fated truck.

SOUTHERN GOVERNORS VOTE TO EXPAND REGIONAL EDUCATION

BILOXI, Miss., Nov. 28.—Southern governors voted to expand the south's regional education program and to coordinate its schools of higher learning with the economic and social needs of the area in their meeting here last week.

The governor of each state will appoint a committee to suggest to the educational control board the types of training and research that can best develop the South.

Arrangements were made to include the states of Texas and Kentucky in the regional plan if their legislators endorse it.

The governors also approved a contract by which Maryland can send Negro nursing students to Meharry Medical College in Nashville.

The regional plans, as a result of gubernatorial approval, will be extended to collaborate with private agencies which have research facilities and resources. Studies

South Has World's Worst Government

COLUMBIA, S. C.—The South has some of the world's worst government, Morris E. Abram of Atlanta, newly elected member of the Southern Regional Council, last week told the South Carolina division of the SRC.

"We have some of the worst government in the world in the South," Abram said. "I don't know about this state, but in Georgia we have some terrible schools, penitentiaries and roads."

"The reason is that we don't vote for good schools or good penitentiaries, but we vote for the best method of keeping the Negro down."

Abram explained that by keeping the Negro down the South was keeping itself down and was violating the federal constitution. He declared.

Christmas Cheer Club Organized At Central Church Meeting

Formal organization was completed with E. W. Banks elected Chairman, Father A. Buxton Keeling, Secretary, Dr. A. H. McCoy, Treasurer.

The group observed that due to a tightening economic condition, its task for the forthcoming Yuletide season will be greater this year than in any recent previous years. However, the joy of bringing cheer to the down-and-out of our group makes us willing to leave no stones unturned in an effort to help very needy family.

Mrs. Arenia C. Mallory Withdraw

MAKES POSSIBLE ELECTION D. C. WOMAN TO HEAD NCNW

WASHINGTON — In a stormy session here Friday at the 14th annual convention of the National Council of Negro Women, Dr. Dorothy Boulding Ferebee was elected president, succeeding Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune.

The tension that had permeated the three days of sessions of the convention broke into the open on Friday when Mrs. Arenia Mallory of Lexington, Miss., a strong contender and regional director of the organization, withdrew throwing her support to Dr. Ferebee.

Up until that point, the leading contenders for the presidency were Mrs. Mallory, Dr. Ferebee and Dr. Edith Sampson of Chicago, a former NCNW board member.

Mrs. Mallory's declination was made in a speech, which aided in throwing much of the voting toward Dr. Ferebee. Admitting that she was out of order since the nominations closed on Thursday night and she had failed to decline at that time, Mrs. Mallory said she was yielding in favor of a woman close to Mrs. Bethune and for the little people, rather than the classes.

The parliamentarian ruled the names of all three candidates would be carried on the ballot. A motion to elect Dr. Ferebee by acclamation was lost.

This marked the first time the organization has changed hands since 1935, when it was founded by Mrs. Bethune.

At 74, Mrs. Bethune said she was relinquishing the presidency to a younger woman. The Council has a membership of 850,000 women and 25 affiliated women's organizations.

The letter, signed by Dr. Capehart and John Delevay, president of the Citizens Democratic club, (Continued on Page Four)

Jackson College Tigers Aim For Upset Win In Clash With Tennessee

Magnolia Classic To Be Annual Affair

JACKSON, MISS., (Special)—Tennessee State's fearsome tigers must show all of their vaunted wares to stop a victory minded Jackson College eleven when the two teams meet here Saturday night in the first Annual Magnolia Classic.

The power-laden Tennessee squad, scourge of Negro College teams the country over, is rated by some sportscasters a good six touchdowns better than the locals.

In other quarters the pre-game posters are slightly less convinced of the might of the tigers and give the Tennessee club a two touchdown edge or fourteen points.

Still others predict an upset win for Jackson College.

President Jacob L. Reddix, in informal discussion with an Advocate reporter concerning the game, expressed sincere appreciation to

Negro Tenant Shifts From Cotton To Dairying; Now Grosses $5,000

FRANKLINTON, La.—The need for more milk for their growing family got Mr. and Mrs. Willie E. Magee, who live near here, out of cotton farming and into dairying. Eight years ago the Magees were tenant farmers growing cotton and corn and coming out in debt almost every year. Today they own 60 acres, a new home, and 24 head of dairy cattle that bring them a gross income of about $5,000 annually.

The Grade A milk from their grade and purebred Holsteins, Jerseys, and Guernseys is sold in New Orleans. A route truck picks up 30 gallons of milk at their gate every day. A new electric cooler keeps the milk top quality until the truck arrives.

"I want a herd of 40 milk cows and about 140 acres more of land," says Mr. Magee. "Then I think I'll be in shape to see my children through school."

It was his desire to see that (Continued on Page Six)

DALLAS, TEXAS, Nov. 28.—(Special)—Stating flatly that "Trying is not enough . . . equal facilities as to courses must be arranged for . . . That is the only way to satisfy the law," Judge William H. Atwell of Federal District Court here on Wednesday, Nov. 16, granted Negroes of Waxahachie a permanent injunction against their school board and ordered eight high school courses, including chemistry, physics and biology, included within 30 days in the curriculum of the negro school.

The decision came at the end of the day that proved to be a sort of school case legal marathon. In the morning Judge Atwell heard the Addison School District case (Dallas county) and in the afternoon tried the Waxahachie case. Attorneys for plaintiffs in both actions were C. B. Bunkley, Jr., and NAACP Regional Special Counsel U. S. Tate. The Waxahachie case had had a preliminary hearing on October 1, at which time Judge Atwell had issued a preliminary injunction covering in the permanent restraint.

While the Waxahachie decision of Judge Atwell ignored mention of unequal physical facilities or the charge of petitioners that negro children were being discriminated against by exclusion from white schools, it nevertheless is regarded as a long legal step forward by competent observers. It was the first time a permanent injunction had been issued in Texas on a school case, and it specifically establishes that whether or not the required ten students make request for a course in a Negro school must be equipped at all times with facilities and teachers to give the course. Judge Atwell dealt with this situation in these words:

"Equal facilities as to courses must be arranged for, so that if and when there are ten Negro Students to take a course the school must be ready. That is the only way to satisfy the law."

Ralph McGill On Board Tuskegee Institute

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., Nov. 30.—When Ralph McGill, Editor of the Atlanta Constitution received official notice of his election to membership on the Board of Trustees of Tuskegee Institute, he replied: "I am honored to be selected and hope that I may be of some service."

Mr. McGill's colorful journalistic career includes four assignments abroad during which time he covered the rise of Hitler's power as well as other aspects of the changing international scene covering more than a decade. With equal facility, Mr. McGill describes a rural home, a soil conservation project, a football game, a political convention or discusses a farm tenant's problem, race relations, a late book: all with courage, intellectual honesty and, sometimes, with startling frankness. He is a reporter, an editor and a social and political analyst.

A native of Tennessee, Mr. McGill played on the Vanderbilt football team, began newspaper work with the Nashville Banner as a sports writer and joined The Atlanta Constitution in 1929. Since 1941, he has been Editor-in-Chief.

The association of Mr. McGill with President F. D. Patterson and Tuskegee Institute will recall a similar warm friendship that existed between Booker T. Washington and the late Clark Howell, a former Editor of the Constitution. Fifty-four years have passed since Booker T. Washington made his famous Atlanta Exposition Address. (Continued on Page Six)
